

Adam Sullivan

Adam Sullivan was appointed Nevada State Engineer on December 1, 2020. He formerly served as a Deputy Administrator with the Nevada Division of Water Resources and as Chief of the Division's Hydrology Section. Prior to his work with the Division of Water Resources, Mr. Sullivan worked for civil engineering firms in Northern Nevada where he specialized in water resource projects. Mr. Sullivan is a Nevada licensed civil engineer and a former board member of the Nevada Water Resources Association. He holds a master's degree in hydrology from the University of Nevada Reno.